

Belén Fernández

María Belén Fernández Martínez is a Civil Engineer and PMP® certified project manager. She has resided in Portugal, Italy, and Spain and she boasts over a decade of experience in business development, leadership, and project management within multinational corporations, holding various positions of responsibility. She is a co-founder of an ongoing International Cooperation project in Africa, where she serves as director, coordinating efforts aimed at financing development projects in areas such as water, sanitation, health, and food security across the African continent.

Graduated from the University of Granada, Belén currently serves as an Industry Officer. In this role, she is tasked with the responsibility of growing the industry around the IFMIF-DONES particle accelerator project and being the technical contact between it and the satellite companies that work or will provide service to the project in the future.
